Whitman County Public Health
2025 Impact Report

Growing a Thriving Community

Dear Whitman County Residents,

What does it look like to thrive locally, and how did Whitman County Public Health work toward growing a thriving community in 2025? The word "thrive" encompasses much more than the absence of physical illness. "Thriving" implies the presence of joy, growth, and good health.

This report highlights public health data and initiatives from the past year that illustrate how we carry out our mission and help people thrive. Some aspects of our focus in 2025 included:

Palouse Resource Guide

Our team is working each quarter to reach out to our community organizations listed on the Palouse Resource Guide to update the information listed. We currently have over 250 organizations and 490 programs listed on the PRG

Question, Persuade, Refer (QPR) Trainings

Throughout the county, we are bringing free QPR trainings to our residents. QPR is suicide prevention program designed to help individuals recognize warning signs of suicide and take action to help someone in crisis. It is often compared to CPR but for mental health emergencies.

Nutrition for Young Families

Despite funding instability in our Women's, Infants, & Children this year, we were adamant about keeping out program open and fully functioning throughout the government shutdown. This vital program supports healthy nutrition for all pregnant and breastfeeding women and children through the age of five.

Please join us as we grow a thriving community through every season!
